EDITORS' MESSAGES

As it takes a village to raise a child, it takes all members of the society to build stronger, healthier and happier communities. It's not only the young people that drive the change, we shall support and empower others - women, elderly and people with disabilities to believe in themselves and make positive changes in their life and life of neighbors.

In this issue of Harbour Lights we explore the meaning of youth empowerment, what drives us - 2,000-strong community of JCI members in Hong Kong - to live passionately, to be changemakers and inspire others by empowering them to be better.

So sit back with this issue of Harbour Lights and let it take you to the magical journey of youth empowerment where your amazement will go beyond your believes.

MESSAGE FROM NATIONAL PRESIDENT

BLAST OFF! Congratulations to the Board of Directors of JCI Hong Kong and Local Chapters in taking office! You are charged with the duty to take young people on board this journey of positive change.

Young people today have ample opportunities to travel overseas and explore our motherland. Equipped with a world view and knowledge on Mainland China's latest development, young people have a natural advantage when they start off their own business from whichever corner of the world.

The skills to adapt to an international environment may be established from early stages of adolescence and adequate to safe harbour young people in the beginning years of entrepreneurship. Yet the world is changing at a pace far faster than we can imagine. Will the owners of start-ups today be able to adapt five years later?

The mission of JCI is to provide development opportunities that empower young people to create positive change. These development opportunities shall be relevant to the needs of young people of not only today but also of the future. Our strategy planning shall somehow involve fortune telling.

This year JCI Hong Kong established a Commission dedicated to Empowerment. Skills like coaching which are transferable to business and personal life will be developed and put to the test. We will not be afraid of whatever challenges that lie ahead of us. As we gradually equip ourselves to succeed in 5 or 10 years to come, we will see that the efforts we place on our personal empowerment today will pay off. Of course this will also be coupled with our tenacity to overcome barriers. This process will bear fruit and at the end we will see the ultimate change happening - a change to our destiny.

BLAST yourself off today and you will be destined to land on a star of your choice!

PAST WISDOM TREASURES OF THE FUTURE

COVER STORY

JUNE LEUNG

Interview with Ms. June Leung, Founder of Group Beacon

PAST WISDOM, TREASURES OF THE OF FUTURE.

Have you wonder what kind of compassion one must have to be the founder of an educational institution and has worked in the industry for more than 20 years? This was the curiosity I had when I was interviewing Ms June Leung, Founder of Beacon Group, which included Beacon College, Beacon Day School and various other educational entities. One such member, Beacon College is most known for providing tutorial classes for students at the secondary level providing quality tutoring services on a niche market that have been predominated by freelancers. Ms Leung started off as a freelance tutor and by series of intertwined events, Beacon College was founded. So, how does a freelance tutor become a founder of an educational institution? Lets find out.

How did it all started?

In the early years, Ms Leung had never imagined herself to be in the educational business. When it was her time to pick a major, she selected a major in Language Translation. Right after graduating from Language Translation, she applied for the Law School of Hong Kong University. Her application was successful. However, upon the day she received the school's acceptance letter, she also received the news that her dad had got cancer. In order to cope with the expense for her father's medication as well as alleviating some of the financial burden of her family, she decided to forego her a law degree career and chose to start working at an early age. Supplementing with her day job, she decided to conduct private tutoring sessions whenever she had some free time.

What did you find the biggest hurdle faced so far?

When this question was asked, Ms Leung becomes flustered. She then recalled two teachings she received from her father when she was very young. First was whatever you do, you must put your team at the top most priority and the second lesson was that the salary of your workers must be paid on time. It was then directed to one occasion where there was a bonus distributed to the employees but for some reasons, the expenses for the rental of the classrooms were excluded. Despite recognizing that no cash were left for the rental, Ms Leung thought that all she needed to do was a little explaining to the landlord for the extension when they came to ask for payment. However to her surprise, it was the bailiffs that came instead of the landlord. Frightened and yet embarrassed, the funds for the rentals were then quickly gathered to handle the bailiffs. She then concluded that when you have roughly 300 full time and over 1000 part time employees, ensuring a solid operation of the company means you are being responsible to your employees, thus echoing her Father's teachings.

How did it transition to a business then?

Again, it wasn't initially planned to be a school of any sort at the beginning. During the early years of tutoring, the tutoring sessions were conducted at a storage area, rented by Ms Leung, in Yuen Long. It happened that the neighbourhood of Yuen Long never had any tutoring sessions conducted by the graduates of reputable university graduates due to its location. Therefore in a short period of time, private sessions of a couple of people soon becomes a couple dozens per session. Eventually, there were complaints about them conducting private tutoring sessions. It was also during this time, advise were given from the neighbourhood for them to register as a legitimate private school.

What makes the Beacon Group so successful?

Ms Leung humbly replied that she has never considered Beacon Group to be successful. However, she believed that in order for an organization to operate smoothly, it is important for everyone inside to understand the mission and vision of that organization. That said, she did mention that you cannot expect everyone in the organization to uniformly be passionate about the mission and vision but she will still try her best to ensure her employees to understand what clients they are trying to serve. That said, Ms Leung summarized the mission and vision of Beacon Group to be two items. First is to provide a platform for teachers to excel the ranks based on how well they teach instead of the organizational structure laid down by traditional educational institutions. Secondly, Beacon Groups wants to provide a platform for the students to be able to choose their teachers flexibly traditional secondary education system does not allow the students to choose the teachers they wanted.

Nowadays, it seems that teaching well is not enough and that a tutor to student relationship must also be maintained after office hours. How would you advise to your teacher on maintaining such relationships with students?

Ms Leung referred to her experiences in the front office as a tutor and because of this, she is able to quickly comprehend what difficulty each of her tutor goes through. She however highlighted that maintaining a good relationship is much easier these days due to the development of social media and that as of today, her student's can still contact her via facebook. She then concluded that times are indeed changing and that the students are also changing. Therefore, tutors shall adapt according to the changes.

You have mentioned previously that during the earlier years, you think its cool to be a female in a leadership position amongst other male teammates. Have you at one point felt that being a female have given you any advantages or disadvantages?

Ms Leung quickly replied that she had never felt any special treatment due to the way she acted echoed in similarly to his male counterparts. As such, most of the people she worked with treated her as a male. That said however, she acknowledged that the question was well asked as she supplemented that there were times when being a female actually became advantages to her. She reflected that tutoring services were traditionally dominated by males and that the tender, motherly archetype portrayed by women could help.

Most important attribute a tutor must have to be successful?

Without a moment of thought, Ms Leung answered that the tutor must have deep and extensive knowledge of the topic he teaches. She reflected that there was a change in the industry standards. Back in the days especially before DSE, a strong emphasizes were placed on examinations tips but nowadays, tutors really must know the topic thoroughly before they are ready to guide their students to perform well on the open examinations.

Young people. What do you think of their philosophies and their mindset nowadays?

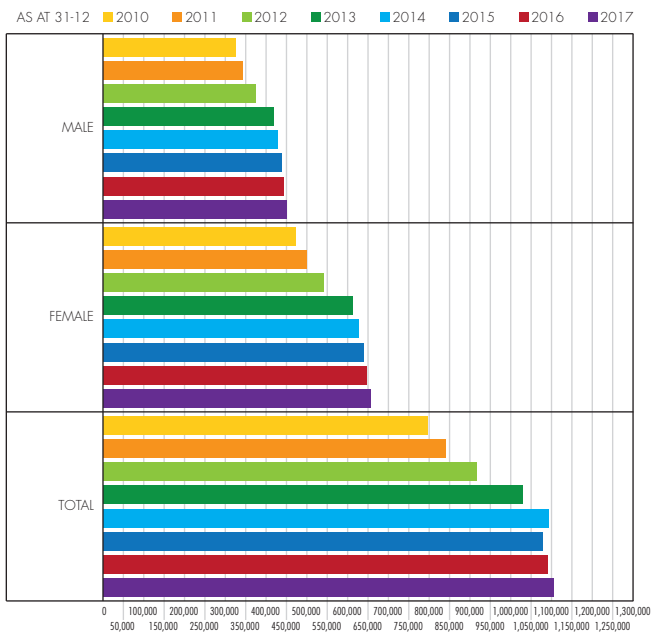

When asked upon this question, Ms Leung remarked that she doesn't think that that we are able to profile young people's philosophy as an archetype as every individual is different. Under such pretext though, she did voice out that the seniors tend to comment the juniors to think further ahead when making plans and yet, young people's perception of planning ahead is relatively shorter than that we may perceive. She followed up by recommending that to ahead of the competition, one must be fast and as such, we should never hold back young people's desire to find a quick solution and instead we should adapt to their pace.

Finally, what do you think formal education lacks and what is your organization's role to supplement such demand?

Ms Leung does not believe that formal education lacks anything. Instead she believed that its because our pursue of quality education that drove the demand for best education system possible. A reference to healthcare was made as a comparison. Ms Leung thinks that even though Hong Kong's healthcare is ranked among one of the best amongst the world. Yet, the society as a whole still strive to improve the healthcare within Hong Kong. She thinks education is the same and takes pride that Beacon College is able to take part in supplementing the education needs. Finally, she concluded that tutoring services in other countries are quite expensive and Beacon College was able to help bring such services to an affordable range for the public, a feat that is special for Hong Kong.

Marc Brian Lim is JCI World President 2018.

1. Brian grew up in the small city of Dagupan, and his favorite childhood activity was to cycle around the city with his friends.
2. First time he attended Asia Pacific Conference at the age of 12. His father served as JCI Philippines National President and JCI Vice-President. Brian says: "When JCI is in your blood - it stays with you across generations".
3. Brian studied in the USA and have double degree in Strategic Management, Operations and Marketing. After coming back to the Philippines in 2001, he joined family business and eventually became Chief Executive Officer of Magic Group of Companies in 2007 and a year later a JCI member.
4. Brian succeeded not only as a businessman and role model for JCI members worldwide, but also in politics: he was elected as Vice Mayor of his native Dagupan City.
5. On the question: "As a leader, is it better to be loved or feared?" he replies: "Neither. It is much better to just perform."
6. His childhood hero is his father and the quality he admires the most is an ability to stay calm during difficult times and find solutions to resolve issues quickly.

What your childhood was like? Most memorable event when you were a child.

I grew up in the city called Dagupan, it is small city, about 3 hours north from Manila. The population is nearly 180,000 people. I grew up in the environment where everybody knew everyone. The kids I went to school with are my friends in adult life. The businessmen in the community know each other. The government officials in the city know each other, everybody knows each other. It was rural experience, country experience. Growing up I was fortunate to go to the school in Manila and to attend high school in the United States. I think it helped a lot in expanding my view about the world, my horizons and experiencing new things. I am thankful of growing up in the small city, because it teaches you a lot about humility. Coming from humble beginnings, it keeps you grounded. No matter what you achieve in life and no matter where you go, there are always this thought coming from a small city in the Philippines.

One of the best things about my city is that everything is so small, it is close to everything. As a kid would go around and bike with my friends, we would go to snack shop, to market and go to see friends. We just had fun and not worried about anything. This was one of joys of being young. As a young boy one of the memories I had, was freedom - going around and being whom I am. It was a beautiful experience. It was a very family atmosphere.

What is your childhood hero?

I always looked up to my father. My father was very active in the community, as you knew he was also a JCI member. He was also a government official in the city, he also served in the Congress. As a young boy I came from very small family - me and my sister and my father and mother - four of us, I really looked up to my father. Many of the things which I do today as a government official and as a JCI member are really not only to fulfil my responsibilities, but also I am trying to honor him. I guess I carry that burden, yet I am glad that I have it.

What did attract you in your father persona?

The one thing I noticed in him that in any given situation, be it a problem, an issue, some kind of calamity, negative circumstances, he always has for some reason to stay calm and has this ability know what to do and what to say. In any crisis or any situation he always seemed to have a solution to it. That was a very calming influence in times of issues and it is one of qualities I admire from him the most.

Since your father was involved in JCI, why didn't you join earlier, but "waited" for 7 years before becoming a member?

When I was a young boy, I have so many memories being part of jaycees (it used to be Jaycees, not JCI). And a lot of my dad's contemporaries in JCI are still my friends today. They are my uncles. I remember going to projects, going to Thailand, Japan for JCI events. I don't remember what they were about, but I know they were big events with a lot of people.

INTERVIEW WITH

JCI PRESIDENT MARC BRIAN LIM

And when I went to the US and came back, it was one of those periods when I wanted to establish myself and my own identity. I didn't want to try to copy people and especially my parents. So my first instinct was, when members of my chapter were recruiting me every year: "Come on, join us, Brian!", to do something different from what my father did. And it was a very big shadow, because he served as National President and as JCI Vice-President. So I thought on the back of my mind what if I will not achieve the same level of accomplishments he had, so there is a little pressure as well. Yet I think that JCI is in your blood - if it is in your blood, somehow it redirects you back to it. In 2008 a very good friend of mine was elected as a president of local chapter and I couldn't say no anymore. He recruited me and I was really sold on it. But I did join and tried to be active. I think the rest was history. At some point, I became very serious about JCI. Really realize the beauty and philosophy of the organization, the creed, how we give opportunities to young people to develop their potential and become leaders in their own way. This things really hit a nerve in me and I truly appreciate it.

When you were facing hard times before, what kept you going? Do you have a set of beliefs or personal mantra?

I always remind myself that I always remind myself that anything that is negative and happens in your life is going to be temporary. There is never a situation which is so prolonged and giving you a hard time. I always think there is a light in the end of the tunnel. That's always been my philosophy. So every time I would face an issue or a problem, I would tell myself: "Look, just sit down, think about it and try to solve it". And the faster I solve it, the better I would feel. I would take time and think about it objectively, looking for ways to solve it, I know there is definitely a sunshine after the rain, there is definitely a solution. Despite the bad times there always will be good times after it. It is a matter of being disciplined and believing that any issue of challenge you are facing, you must be capable of resolving it. And you must have that faith within yourself. I think that's very important. In JCI a lot of leaders have that resolve. It is a resolve to say: "Hey, I have the solution to this problem and we just have to figure it out". And that's very important to have that kind of perspective and mindset.

Have you ever felt like there is "too much" JCI in your life? What would you advise to JCI members who experience overwhelming feelings with the organization and pressure to give more time. How balance JCI-life, personal life and career/ business?

Everybody needs to have and find some kind of balance. That's requirement for everyone: whether you are a JCI member or not. A lot thoughts nowadays we hear about work-life balance: balancing your time with family, balancing your time with professional life and your civic organization life. Everyone has its own way in dealing with it and this balance. The key is to always looks at this different aspects of your life as learning points. Meaning, there are certain lessons you will learn from JCI that you may not learn from your family life. But for sure there are certain things you will learn from your family life that you will never learn in JCI. Same with professional life. Keeping an open mind and absorbing these lessons makes you balanced automatically. I don't think that the solution should be to put measurements on how much you should commit to each aspects of your life. Try absorb as much as you can in your life and balance will happen by itself. You adapt and adjust to that. You try to welcome things from all aspects of your life and try to learn as much as you can.

... so that means you would never plan?

Absolutely. I am government official, I am active in JCI especially last years as an international officer, I have to take care of my parents and my sister, I have to take care of our business. But it's not like I say: "I am going to wake up today and put three hours in JCI, two hours in..." I don't do that. In the end of the day it is balancing by itself. Just being enthusiastic about developing yourself and learning as much as you can from all these opportunities and all the aspects of your life. And the balancing automatically just happens. This is from my experience.

Let's get a little more personal. How would you describe your ideal partner?

I think ideal partner should be very patient and understanding. I am the type of person who is not satisfied by doing anything (including weekends). I have to do something, keep busy. That's my nature. My ideal partner would have to be very understanding and very patient. That is who I am as a person.

What do think is the most important thing in life? What really matter?

I think the most important thing in life is always focus on the good and always try to minimize the negative. At the end of it all you want to look back and say: "This are all the good things I did. These are all the people I positively affected. I did face all these issues, I did fight these people, but I kept that to minimal. And in the end all the positive I did that affected people positively as well are far outweigh my mistakes, conflicts and issues. I think that's very important: you just have to focus on the positive.

Did you make any resolutions for this year and what are they?

The ability to improve yourself, the opportunities to become better are everywhere around us any time at any given day. It is just matter at any time realizing that is an opportunity to be better for you to take advantage of it. So more than to have resolutions to start this year you should have resolutions as much as you can, in order to make yourself much better person. JCI is very simple: it is the organization for young people to find, discover and transform to the best version of themselves. And we do it by believing in our creed and creating projects that make difference in the communities, people that we serve. And what you learn in JCI until you are 40 should be enough to sustain your life from 40 years onward: to be the best version of yourself, to be the best leader you can be, to be the best servant you can be. And that to me is JCI in a nutshell.

Final words before we conclude..

I want to thank all of you. I truly admire the way you conduct projects, meetings, the way you handle protocol and all these things. If I would to point a National Organization to say this should be the model for JCI I can easily point to Hong Kong as one of the best organizations in the world. So I should be the one to say thank to all of you, appreciating the work you do year after year to be successful. My only wish for all of you beyond JCI is to keep all the learning that you have in this organization and not just to keep it in your hearts and minds, but somehow to transform it into an action. Because education in the end of the day is not just knowledge. Education is really action. What you learn you must do. And when you do it, you truly create an impact that we talk about in JCI.

The theme of JCI Hong Kong 2018 as well as that of the Inaugural Ceremony is – Beyond Belive. The ceremony was successfully held on January 6 with over 500 participants from different partners of JCI Hong Kong and JC members. It was our honor to have Deputy Director of The Liaison Office of the Central People's Government in the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region, Mr. Chen Dong, Director of Hong Kong Fire Services, Mr. Lee Kin-Yat, FSDSM, FSMSM and JCI President Marc Brian Lim to be our guest of honor to witness the installation of National President Ronald Kan, National Officer and Local Presidents' installation.

As a leader, we often push ourselves beyond our limits and believe that we can accomplish more as a team. That's why we invited a band who performed for us during luncheon is called "Molecular Mind", Molecular stands for partnership. Some of the band members are visually impaired and they face a lot of challenges. They are definitely a living example of pursuing life beyond limits. JCI is an international organization which has over 200,000 members around the world, therefore we are happy to have Korea JC Mr. Tim Jihoon Sung sing "I Believe" for us.

EMPOWERING MEMBERS, EMPOWERING YOU

The National Member Empowerment Commission (總會會員賦權委員會) is a new Commission of JCI Hong Kong since 2018, with a micro goal of helping members explore the values of JCI and a macro goal of assisting member retention through the use of coaching. In December 2017 and January 2018, four workshops for President and Executive Committee members of local chapters were held to introduce coaching skills into practice. The program launched by the Commission is called "Be Better Coach Program". Throughout the workshops and program, more than 50% Executive Committee of local chapters are involved and creating greater impact on members together.

In organizing the series of Workshops, heartfelt gratitude is expressed to 1999 National President Senator Louise Chan, 2002 National President Senator Tony Chan and 2012 National President Senator Stanley Ng for being the trainers to share their valuable experience and skills with the 2018 Executive Committee members of local chapters.

Why coaching? Coaching can assist to nurture future leaders in an organization, and to motivate members to achieve great results and personal growth at the end. See you soon in future Empowering events!

START "BRAND" NEW IN 2018

National Corporate Communications Commission 1st Workshop on 12 Dec 2017

The first enriching and fun PR workshop of National Corporate Communications Commission was successfully held on 12 December 2017. Over 70 guests including JC members and external guests attended the event with inspiring reflections, mainly in terms of how branding help position, highlight the value and create the culture of an organization.

Ms. Grace Tse, Founder and Chairman of i Dance Enterprise Ltd., Chairman of The Cosmetic & Perfumery Association of Hong Kong, Honored President of Hong Kong Ladies Dynamic Association, Director of Innovative Entrepreneur Association and Chairman of Hong Kong Institute of Marketing, was invited to be our Guest Speaker that night.

With 30 years of proven brand management experience with international brands such as Revlon and Procter & Gamble (P&G), Grace shared with us her extensive experience, as well as tips on branding and how to strengthen publicity not only for business success but also for a good cause.

In order to make the workshop more interactive and interesting, Grace shared with us some real successful case studies such as how she started her business, how she coped with all the difficulties and transformed her Company from focusing on dance classes to promoting better and healthy life. The climax of the workshop was the time when 2 dance teachers arranged by Grace came in to lead us to do some simple dance exercises together!

WORLD CLEANUP DAY AMBASSADOR WORKSHOP

Along with 150 countries, JCI Hong Kong is committed to raise public awareness on immediate action to cleanup globally and create "Zero Waste" sustainable impact by promoting the need of Reduce, Reuse, Recycle, and Redesign. World Cleanup Day Campaign has been kickstarted in 2018 with "World Cleanup Day Ambassador Workshop" on Jan 20th, 2018. We had a total of 74 JCI Hong Kong members participated in our workshop, and will become our ambassadors to help spread the message of this Campaign.

During ambassador workshop, we had a wonderful sharing session by two guest speakers: Political Assistant to Secretary for the Environment Ms. Michelle Au, and Hong Kong Waste Management Association Immediate Past Chairman Mr. Victor Li. Our speakers shared development and implementation environmental policies, and technologies available to increase the type of waste being recycled. One of key messages was: policies and technologies are there to help reduce waste problem, but the most direct solution is to prevent waste from being created.

In addition to the guest speakers sharing, National Well-being team shared action-plan for World Cleanup Day 2018. Ambassadors were empowered with the knowledge of current waste problem globally, current available solutions in Hong Kong, and the actions to take in 2018. Together JCI Hong Kong will promote World Cleanup Day to all sectors of the society in Hong Kong.

UNESCO PEACE DAY

At the 6th Peacemakers' Cultural Celebration, an all-weekend event organized by the UNESCO Hong Kong Association at the Hong Kong Science Park on February 10th and 11th, JCIHK had set up booths and drawn public attention to the World Cleanup Day 2018 (our featured event on September 15th) with games and quizzes on beach cleanliness, recycling basics as well as public awareness of the Global Goals. The activities had drawn crowds from various demographics and ethnicities.

During the weekend the kick-off ceremony of the "WE UNITE for a BETTER WORLD" Charter Program was also held, with the first two schools joining the charter. Attendees were introduced to the program - a call-to-action campaign for local companies, schools and non-profit organizations to partner up with JCIHK, and to commit to taking small, smart steps towards the 17 Global Goals and to create positive change in their communities.

With collaboration of the UNESCO Hong Kong Association and JCIHK National Training and Development Commission, a pioneering workshop was brought to local chapter board members as well as project chairman on January 24th. Testimonials of the workshop include:

"This workshop is one of the most interesting workshop I attended in JCI. Peace is an inborn virtue in our Chinese culture."

"An interesting workshop, we learned the Global Goals from fun activities... we realized the harmony and order between all things and the landscapes from calligraphy."

"From my brothers who have attended, I knew it brought them new information and experience... that the ordering of the Goals were related to Heaven, Earth and Man."

"The SDG Pyramid and Five Elements of Peace have added depth into the Goals that were new to us."

"The speakers did not point out exactly what should be done; rather, they showed us what our World used to be. We need Global Goals because during evolution and revolution, we may have forgotten and given up on what we had."

Attendees were introduced to the peace elements within the Global Goals, and new visualizations of the Goals such as the SDG pyramid. Group activities have encouraged attendees to gain inspirations on their project ideas based on the Global Goals.

This workshop aimed to encourage new visualizations atop the Global Goals, and to empower attendees on motivating partnerships from the community.

JCIHK Alumni Club 20TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

The 20th Anniversary celebration of JCIHK Alumni Club was held on December 10, 2017 under the theme of "GREASE". Inspired by the popular American musical "GREASE", the creative team undertook an incredible journey of cultural exploration and appreciation throughout the entire year. Our efforts culminated into our rendition of "GREASE" performed on the 20th Anniversary celebration.

Numerous records have been reached in JCI Alumni Club history with this celebration:

- Full house before the end of early bird registration
- The highest attendance of guests who joined our celebration dinner
- The largest number of people (333 guests) taken in one group photo wearing our Grease-themed sunglasses
- The biggest OC / Creative team (Over 40 people) operated
- 80+ hours of rehearsal, the longest preparation time for our performances compared to previous years
- The highest sponsorship amount fundraised
- The largest number of advertising sponsorships obtained

FIRST NATIONAL ALUMNI CLUB LUNCHEON IN 2018

A happy start! The very first 2018 National Alumni Club (NAC) event was successfully held on January 13, 2018. The luncheon was hosted by our Hon. Advisor Senator Sonny Yu and Hon. Patron Senator Jennifer Yu.

With the full support of our honourable guests National President Senator Ronald Kan, National Immediate Past President Senator Teresa Poon, JCI Senate Club Treasurer Senator Licca Chan and past Chairmen, all 2018 Local Chapter Senior Member Club Chairpersons and Convenors had a very fruitful and warm mingle with all guests and NAC excom.

To treasure our friendship and JC life, NAC is ready to connect with all members for another energetic year of 2018 with the leadership of our Chairman Senator Andy Ma. So, you all are welcome to join our upcoming events and your participation will definitely light up our life.

Stay tuned and Happy New Year!

O! Dream Comes True Seminar

The event was held on 29 January 2018 at the Lecture Theatre, the Hong Kong Central Library. Being the fourth person in Hong Kong to conquered the summit of Mount Everest, Ng Chun Ting Elton was invited to share his unforgettable experience, and how he was able to reach the mountain peak despite facing severe weather conditions and different obstacles. His speech was very inspiring and encouraging in ways that remind us not to give up our dreams, and help those who are in need to achieve theirs.
