Active Citizenship – a Balance between Rights and Responsibilities

Active Citizenship can be seen as an articulation of the debate over rights versus responsibilities. If a body gives rights to the people under its remit, then these people might have certain responsibilities to uphold. This is not only applied to a city or national level, but can also be wider, such as global citizenship. The implication is that active citizen is one who fulfills both their rights and responsibilities in a balanced way.

In real life, we can see that rights are often written down as part of the law, but responsibilities are not usually well defined. There may be disagreements amongst the citizens as to what the responsibilities are. Some may suggest citizens should have entitlements necessary for human dignity, while others may think citizenship referring to as being active in government affairs and emphasis on man's commitment to duty and civic goodness.

The concept of citizenship contains many unresolved issues, and sometimes called tensions. It is very obvious in Hong Kong nowadays. I believe JCI can take an active role in this.

An active citizen is someone who takes a role in the community. JCI Hong Kong members can leverage our high-level professional expertise in different areas, such as banking, education, engineering, and technology to help the less fortunate and create more impactful solution to the social need.

I have heard sayings that active citizens are not inborn – we must never forget that throughout our lives we can grow, develop and better ourselves to become better citizens, no matter what age we are. It is never too late to become an Active Citizen.

Active citizenship is something that will never go out of fashion. It affects every face of our lives – our families, neighbourhoods, communities, voluntary organisations, workplace and political structures. Each and every one of us has a part to play.

We are in the last quarter of 2012 and we are in a new beginning of next journey. Never stop. We decide our future.

Interview with Professor
 Frederick
 Ma Si Hang
 GBS, JP
 TOYP Chief Judge

Text: Eliza Chan

Professor Frederick Ma Si Hang, GBS, JP, though retiring from the Secretary for Commerce and Economic Development in 2008, is never retiring. As an outstanding active citizen, Professor Ma has served as the Chief Judge of the Ten Outstanding Young Persons (TOYP) Selection and actively involved in many non-executive positions, advisory committees and community work in a meaningful way. We are honoured to have interviewed Professor Ma who shared with us “We Decide Our Future” and demonstrated what are active citizens.

We Decide Our Future

Grew up in a tough environment, Professor Ma exemplifies “We Decide Our Future”. Throughout his youth, escaping from poverty became the prime motivation for him to work hard. He was grateful to have the opportunity to receive higher education that enabled him to achieve upward mobility to be a successful person now. Since he had to interact with many people including his relatives, he was trained to possess good interpersonal skills and appreciate the importance of teamwork which are keys to success.

Professor Ma strongly believed in “We Decide Our Future”. One’s future is always controlled by his/her hands and whether he/she will succeed or not depends on how he/she faces the problem. He quoted the saying of Sir Winston Churchill - “A pessimist sees the difficulty in every opportunity; an optimist sees the opportunity in every difficulty”.

“ In the path to success, there are always hurdles that make people fall down. It is important that he/she will not easily give up and be positive in tackling the difficulty. ”

He complimented that Cyclist Lee Wai Sze, who won Hong Kong’s first bronze medal in the Women’s Keirin Race event at the London Olympics, is a good example. She must have fallen a lot of times and could have many reasons for not succeeding. Despite the hardship in practice, injuries, and many unfavourable conditions in Hong Kong such as the lack of cycling facilities, she is persistent to achieve the goal to win international awards.

Nowadays, many young people express a lot of grievances, including unfavourable economic situation, the low salary even with a university degree, and the difficulty to buy property. Professor Ma shared the thoughts of the young and he actually experienced similar adversity in his times: - Oil Crisis in 1974, worked in Chase Manhattan where all the senior management in the bank were westerners; and worked in Canada where he was not used to the lifestyle and cultural environment. Under these circumstances, if he lost the confidence and aspiration to do well, he would not have achieved the current position now. He encouraged the young to decide his/her own future, instead of complaining and blaming all the time. They should learn from experience, think how to set goals and pursue them with perservance.

How to Achieve the Goals

To Professor Ma, different people have different definitions of success, so it may not be easy to generalise how to be successful. Instead, he opined that hard work, aspiration, positive and persistent attitude, preparation, good interpersonal skills and teamwork are some keys to achieve the goals. Hard work and aspiration are the basis. He has never met people who can achieve the goals without working hard. One also needs to possess a positive and persistent attitude when pursuing the goal and facing difficulties. Sometimes, luck may be an attribute. But he highlighted the quote from the former Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau “Luck, that’s when preparation meets opportunity”. If you are not prepared, you will not be able to grasp the opportunities to achieve the goal.

Possessing good interpersonal skills and the ability to work in a team are other crucial factors to achieve goals. Without team efforts and support, it is always difficult to achieve much. It is an important management philosophy for a leader to be humble and to recognise team performance.

How to be popular and gain support from people? Professor Ma highlighted the significance of sincerity. He had the impression that nowadays, the young are too self-centred and some may approach people with purpose. He remarked that friendship is developed when you offer timely help to people when it is most needed.

From the Commercial Sector to the Government

Giving up an annual salary of over 10 million dollars, Professor Ma shifted from the commercial sector to the Government in 2002 as the Secretary for Financial Services and the Treasury under the Principal Officials Accountability System. This is not a too difficult decision for him. He joked that in 2002, the “kitchen” was not as hot as in 2012. Having benefited from the financial support of the Government for his university studies, he had the mission to pay back to the society and to contribute his professional experience to the Government. To him, this has been one of the best decisions in his life and he gained a lot of satisfaction. When asked if he would accept the invitation to serve in the Government in 2012, he replied that this was not a choice for him now. After diagnosing with cavernous hemangioma and venous angioma, he could not afford the pressure of being a government official or taking any executive posts.

The Economic System of Hong Kong

As a financial professional, Professor Ma viewed that a lot of opportunities are available to Hong Kong due to its close relationship with China. The economy, tourism and finance of Hong Kong are greatly affected by China. Thus, it is very crucial to know China well. There are plenty of development opportunities for the young now than he could have experienced in 1973 after his graduation from the University. He was one of the few fortunate individuals who were sent to New York to work, but he could not stay in the US for further development. It is now easier for the young to join the workforce, develop and extend the network in China.

For the Hong Kong economic system, Professor Ma considered that it focuses too much on the service and finance industries. Due to high costs, manufacturing industry is not well developed in Hong Kong. In facing the current economic situation, Professor Ma encouraged investment on the high-technology industry. He quoted the case of Switzerland that in addition to finance, it has developed various manufacturing industries including watches and pharmaceutical goods. He was pleased that the Chief Executive is progressing towards the direction to diversify the industries. When compared with Switzerland, Professor Ma commented that the main problem in Hong Kong related to the high land costs which discouraged external developers from investing. If possible, the Government could provide more flexibility in its land policy to promote the development of manufacturing industry. Regarding the disparity between the rich and the poor, the Government could work more to provide more opportunities for the young to aspire and create wealth.

What are Outstanding Young Persons?

Being the Chief Judge of TOYP, Professor Ma defined “Outstanding Young Persons” as those with remarkable performance in their area, not in terms of how much he/she can earn. The process to success is another important criterion in deciding the TOYP awardee. To quote the example of the late Lau Hiu Fung, the 2010 TOYP awardee, while he suffered from the Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy since the age of eight, Mr Lau kept on pursuing knowledge with enthusiasm, perseverance and hard work. His indomitable spirit and passion for learning eventually paid off and earned him a first-class honour, the prestigious award of TOYP, as well as the nickname “Hong Kong’s Stephen Hawking”.

A Role Model of Active Citizen

Professor Ma humbly admitted that he has become an active citizen only when he joined the Government in 2002 and after retirement. Unlike JCI Hong Kong members, he was so concentrated in his profession when he was young that he could not afford time to contribute to the society. Now that he has reached a stage of life when his needs are met, he wishes to give what he has gained back to the society.

“If you have ‘Passion’, it is never too late to be active citizens. Active citizens are those who respond positively to the societal issues. The number of service hours or the organisations joined are not important considerations.”

He was pleased to see the initiative of the young to clean up the plastic pellets scattered on beaches after the typhoon. This is a demonstration of social responsibility and awareness of environmental conservation.

Reaching the age of 60 this year, Professor Ma does not consider himself old. He feels himself younger than before. His main objectives are to be healthy, happy and do better. He is pleased that he is undergoing “lifelong learning” and serving the community meaningfully every day.

Interview with Dr Maggie Koong

2000 TOYP Awardee

Text: Eliza Chan

Photos: Steve Ho

2012 is the 40th Ten Outstanding Young Persons (TOYP) Selection. How many TOYP awardees do you know? In this issue, we are honoured to have interviewed the 2000 TOYP Awardee, Dr Maggie Koong May Kay. Dr Koong is the Chief Principal of the Victoria Educational Organisation (VEO), a well-established "education kingdom" with 9 nurseries and kindergartens, one primary and secondary school "Victoria Shanghai Academy" (VSA) offering the International Baccalaureate (IB) Program. She is a dedicated educator, principal and active citizen, which is a role model for the young generation.

We Decide our Future

Born in an education family, with her mother, Ms Christina Ting Yuk Chee, being the founder of the VEO, Dr Koong spent most of her childhood in the Victoria Kindergarten. She lived near and stay after school in the Kindergarten playing role play. In her undergraduate studies in the USA, Dr Koong deliberately chose not to "inherit" her mother's profession and opted to study medicine. Yet, Dr Koong's future changed in the third year of studies when she had to declare the major after two years of liberal studies and internship. Being an intern in the Casualty Department of a children's hospital, she encountered suffering children every day. When compared with the joyful experience in the kindergarten being the Teaching Assistant, she decided her future to drop medical studies and shifted to study psychology and education.

In 1985 summer, Dr Koong returned to Hong Kong to celebrate the 20th Anniversary of the VEO. She was encouraged by her mother to stay in Hong Kong. She joked that perhaps this was a setup by her mother. During the stay, what she experienced in Hong Kong (such as the impressive mathematic exhibition, the bilingual teaching environment, the master degree programme in the University of Hong Kong) convinced that she could enjoy similar development as in the USA. As an Asian and non-native English speaker, it was a long way for her to become a kindergarten principal in the USA. She also had the precious opportunity to bid for Kornhill to set up a new kindergarten with autonomy to develop the curriculum and hire new teachers. All these paved her new page in Hong Kong.

The Fruitful Four Years

What can you achieve in four years? Promotion, earning a university degree or becoming a Chapter President? From 1985 to 1989, Dr Koong got married, gave birth to two children, established two kindergartens and completed her master degree programme. For ordinary persons, all these might take eight years to complete, but superwoman Dr Koong made all these happen in four years, without considering this a tough process. To quote the example, to enjoy the moment of motherhood without having to work on the paper for the master degree programme in the hospital, it is really unbelievable that Dr Koong could manage to finish the paper timely and then be admitted to the hospital to deliver her daughter by natural birth.

The Education Dream Comes True

Built upon on the foundation by her mother, Dr Koong considered it equally a challenge to bring the family business to the next horizon. Under her capability, two kindergartens were quickly established in two years after her return to Hong Kong. Dr Koong explained that this was not an aggressive expansion, but to provide more education opportunities in order not to disappoint parents who are eager to send their children to the kindergarten. Over the years, the VEO has grown from strength to strength from nurseries to a through-train school with secondary education. Since 1998, she has also expanded the kingdom to Shanghai. To her, the best way to learn from the China education system is to set up a kindergarten there. With continuous efforts, vision and words of mouth, Dr Koong has made the education dream come true and established the VEO at international standards.

In managing such a big "kingdom", Dr Koong has established the Central

Can you guess what are they?
(Answer is on P.7)

Curriculum Development Team, her “think tank”, from time to time to spread her thoughts and passion throughout the Organisation.

VSA – The Pioneer of International Baccalaureate Program

To provide a hybrid between local and international education systems, the VSA is a pioneer of IB Program in Hong Kong which is well-received. The IB Primary Years Program was approved for introduction in 2005, followed by the IB Middle Years Program and the IB Diploma Program in 2006 and 2007 respectively. To Dr Koong, the IB Program provides a well-structured curriculum and a good means of benchmarking against international standards. The VSA actively seeks external accreditations for quality assurance. “It is a deep learning curve to operate the IB Program especially the secondary education. I am happy to obtain the accreditation status from overseas organisations which is a good indicator of our quality delivery”, said Dr Koong.

To sustain professional development, Dr Koong has actively participated in conferences and training programmes. She believed in the importance of teacher engagement in research and scholarly activities which is conducive to improvement in pedagogy. Thus, the VEO has introduced overseas professional excursion and the subsidy scheme to encourage teacher participation so as to allow them to learn from the international good practice. She also fights for opportunities for teachers to present in conferences and be attached in “shadow” schools as peer learning.

The “Multi-Dimensional” Dr Koong

Nowadays, being a principal is no easy task. To maintain close relationship with different levels of students from kindergartens to secondary school, Dr Koong has put in much creativity. Instead of being a traditional principal, Dr Koong has used “multi-dimensional” means of communication and gimmicks – serving as a storyteller, arranging Dr Koong’s luncheons, preparing “Dr Koong’s M&M’s chocolates”, playing magic to test students’ knowledge, learning to play puppet in order to train calmness and emotional quotient. She enjoys every moment of mingling with students such as going to field trips with secondary students together to build up relationship. Dr Koong joked that as long as she is still physically fit to jump, she is willing to jump with students.

The Hong Kong Education System

To Dr Koong, the Hong Kong Education System is progressing towards the right direction, but can be more open-minded. She supported the move towards liberal education which provides students with time to consider their study path. While the introduction of national education is criticised as “brainwash”, she expressed that the implementation has to be handled with caution.

“Educators should play a role to broaden students’ horizon and to cultivate their appreciation of Chinese culture through a well-designed curriculum and exchange with overseas students.”

In a recent attempt, VSA students were asked to engage in a cultural exchange with US students. Through the study trip to Shanghai with US students who are eager to learn Chinese culture, it is hoped that VSA students can appreciate that national education is not “brainwash” and to treasure the opportunities to learn Chinese culture and to be a proud Chinese citizen.

An Active Citizen by Birth

Dr Koong is an outstanding active citizen probably “by birth”. Her mother, being a role model, has influenced and exposed her to various voluntary activities since childhood. When she was young, visiting youth and elderly centres, NGOs, and being a volunteer became her weekend activities.

While she has striven to promote quality of education through her professional involvement, she has also actively served in numerous NGOs, including UNICEF, Hong Kong PHAB Association, Playright Children’s Play Association, Chinese Society for Early Childhood Education, to promote the betterment of children. To quote a few examples, Dr Koong together with 40 parents and children went to Yunnan to view the opening of the footbridge established under their donation and to visit rural people in the mountain areas. She has also brought 20 families to attend the 25th Anniversary of the Playright to raise their support for the hospital play. Being a member in the Equal Opportunities Commission, she has actively urged the government to look into the issue of limited opportunities for inclusive education (7,000 needy children are waiting) and to commit more resources to support its extension and the needy families.

“To be active citizens, the young need to develop intercultural understanding and embrace a global outlook. Hong Kong students should be exposed to interact with people from different ethnicities and to understand global issues.”

It is based on this mission that Dr Koong has managed the VEO. In VEO, students are trained to be internationally-minded with cultural awareness by various activities and requirement to service in a developing country.

Salute to Dr Koong for her unfailing efforts in education!

Answer: Dr Koong’s M&M’s, creative incentives for students! At the interview, we were privileged to receive Dr Koong’s M&M’s.

The 47th National Convention

The 47th National Convention WE DECIDE OUR FUTURE

When Diversity Made a Difference, When Future Came to Light

Every year, all local chapters of JCI Hong Kong gather to explore JCI missions. The 47th National Convention held this year on 22-23 September 2012, however, proved more than extraordinary by assembling efforts from 19 chapters, which not only made the event one-of-a-kind but also echoed with its main theme - "We Decide Our Future". After the impressive march-in of the National Officers and Chapter Presidents at the Opening Ceremony, more than 430 members and delegates actively participated in a full array of theme-related forums, luncheons and training seminars to identify goals, exchange views, explore the challenges ahead and draw the possible roadmap. 15 new Senators as well as distinguished members and chapters were recognised for their achievements to empower positive changes in the greater community.

From every minute detail to every spectacular moment, the Organising Committee went the extra mile to turn the 2-day event into an engaging and inspiring journey, either in active dialogue or in sheer silence. The red-white-blue convention kits that were distributed to all Jaycees on the first day embodied the unyielding spirit that Hong Kong people embrace and reminded us to stay resilient and creative amid odds and radical changes.

We Decide our Future at JCIHK Development Forum

The Theme Seminar - The Power of Meⁿ=WE brought home three distinguished guest speakers to share their views on our environment, our culture and our society and how to inspire the younger generations to steer a more sustainable path. Over 150 members enthusiastically participated and benefited with deep insights. The "Dialogue in Silence" Training Workshop, on the contrary, prompted the participants to experience team building and game play with headsets on and speech prohibited. By placing the participants under the stress of limited resources, the workshop ultimately came as a complete revelation to all when participants took off the headsets and came to realise the importance of communication strategies, problem-solving skills and cooperation techniques. The Training Workshop "Road to Success" offered tips on how to embark on the road to success - to know ourselves by making the best use of our virtues and talents and also not overlooking our shortcomings.

At the Senate Luncheon, Mr Paul Tang, JP, Secretary for the Civil Service, was invited to share with us the topic "一心為香港". From his speech, the audience got a better understanding of the biggest workforce in Hong Kong and how civil servants perform their duties diligently.

Bidding for the 48th National Convention

The light dancing at the Convention Ball marked the climax of the convention and brought the yearly convention to an unforgettable end. At a grand ballroom where guests were engaged in conversations, lights were turned off and dancers with contours of their costumes lit up by LEDs captivated all guests by striking unique calligraphies in the air, mingled with strong music beats and energetic choreographies. It was a moment shared by the broad audience, a commemorative moment when diversity subsided and harmony bonded all. The strong sense of collaboration across chapters as well as the immense creativity and potentials showcased throughout the convention best exemplified JCI's values and its mission to empower young active citizens to make positive changes. The closing of the convention, nevertheless, heralded the start of a sustainable and promising future.

WE DECIDE OUR FUTURE

by National Theme Director Pokit Lok

JCI Hong Kong initialised a regional survey named "JCI Be Better Index", which aims at studying how the youth perceive their communities and how they expect the future development of their communities in 5-year term. The Survey covers ten areas, namely:

- Economy
- Entrepreneurship and Opportunity
- International Exposure and Global Citizenship
- Creativity and Innovation Development
- Health and Environment
- Education and Technology
- Governance
- Safety and Security
- Personal Freedom
- Social Capital / mobility

For details of the Survey Results,
please visit:

Since May 2012, it has collected over two thousand responses from 14 national organisation members of the Asia-Pacific region. The survey results were announced at the 47th National Convention of the JCI Hong Kong on 22 September 2012. The Survey shows that the youth is quite optimistic to future development of creativity and innovation development. Interesting findings reveal that compared to young citizens from the rest of Asia, the Japanese tend to be more pessimistic towards both the present and the future, in terms of personal freedom, creativity and innovation development, entrepreneurship and opportunity.

Community Development

WE UNITE for a BETTER WORLD

WE UNITE for A BETTER WORLD 2012 was successfully completed with a Music Concert by Asharpsinger cum Award Presentation – We Unite • We Sing Concert on 12 October 2012. This year, a series of projects – Art Exhibition, Debate Competition cum Seminar, and Music Concert were organised. We did achieve a breakthrough in the history of JCI Hong Kong.

Better World Debate Competition cum Seminar

(hosted by JCI East Kowloon)

Students are the seeds to develop our society. We believe that JCI Hong Kong can expand the vision of students to the World through introducing them to the eight United Nations Millennium Development Goals (UN MDG). A series of Debate Competitions were thus held in September and October 2012. The results are:

Champion: La Salle College

First Runner-up: Queen's College

Second Runner-up: Hong Kong Association of Debaters and Diocesan Girls' School

The result of competition is important, but more importantly is that the seeds of UN MDG have been laid inside their heart.

To arouse students' awareness of the world issues, the JCI Hong Kong also conducted a seminar on 30 September 2012, with speakers from the UNESCO Hong Kong Association and UNHCR Hong Kong and Macao Office.

We Unite • We Sing Concert

(hosted by JCI City)

We have a dream – not only to reward the companies, NGOs, and schools about their contribution to UN MDG, but also to present it through music and seek donation for the JCI Nothing But Nets. The music performance by Asharpsinger does not make use of musical instrument, but by human. We Unite • We Sing Concert was successfully organised on 12 October 2012 with nearly 200 attendants.

Leadership Development

5-Star Training Camp III

(co-hosted by JCI North District and JCI Apex)

by Chairman Kacy Yu

The last 2012 5-Star Training Camp was held at Wu Kwai Sha Youth Village on 13-14 October 2012. 46 members from 16 chapters participated enthusiastically in the camp with the theme "Learn from Basis; Pat-Pat-Practice; Way to Success!" The camp was well-designed under a high school setting, and all helpers were devoted to be one of the school roles, which provided participants with an atmosphere of "back to school".

In the camp, participants were grouped into 6 School Houses to compete for the group prize through different activities, including sharing, role play, presentation and team building. They also joined together as one group and put into a lot of efforts for the last show in the graduation ceremony, which would remain memorable in their life. Through the 2-day camp, they have made a lot of friends from different chapters, understood more about JCI and learnt more about leadership and project management skills. All participants who joined the camp shared that they have interest to join different kind of JC activities, and many of them have interest to be one of the chapter's board members in the future.

They have made their decision to be future JC leaders. Would you be the next one?

Power Workshops

Why JCI needs to Expand its Network of the Young?

A Network of the Young, A Social Solution Provider

The JCI Vision is to be the leading global network of young active citizens. Why do we need to build a Network of the Young?

In 1915 in St. Louis, Missouri, USA, JCI was founded under the vision to adopt a constructive approach to civic problems. The movement gradually spread around the world. In late 1940's, Hong Kong was recovering from the Second World War, and there were urgent needs for social and economic development. JCI Hong Kong was thus founded on the needs to gather local community leaders to grasp the opportunities to contribute to the development of Hong Kong. Projects were since then launched to address various social issues e.g. birth control, child education, disabled equality, elderly care, refugee issue, education, constitution development, etc. The increasing membership base of JCI Hong Kong had made it possible to design, plan and implement more and more projects for social needs.

Nowadays, we have built a Network of the Young in 19 local chapters, which continue to initiate projects to address evolving social issues, e.g. green economy, CSR, sustainable development, cultural development, etc. JCI Hong Kong has taken the position as a solution provider for social issues. It can be expected that the world is now and will be in a rapid pace of development and the society of Hong Kong is and will be facing great challenges in all dimensions. In order to enhance our role in the society and strengthen our impact in the community, the Network of the Young of JCI Hong Kong needs to be expanded further, such that we can gather a sufficient mass of talented, passionate, active, responsible, young citizens to continue to create positive changes in the society.

JCI Networker in Action

Started in the 4th quarter of 2011, JCI Hong Kong has launched a new scheme of "JCI Networker" to encourage each and every member to take an active part in expanding the Network of the Young. Individual member will be marked when introducing prospective members to join JCI and when those prospective members are inducted as full members. Individual member whose accumulated marks have reached a certain level will be recognised as "JCI Networker", e.g. those who have introduced 3 prospective members and 1 inducted full member will be recognised as "Level 1 JCI Networker".

Through this scheme, 46 individual members were recognised as "JCI Networkers" in the year of 2011/12 who have in total recruited more than 170 prospective members, with more than 50 of them have already been inducted as full members. Among them are 3 outstanding "Level 2 JCI Networkers" who have spent great effort to inject new blood to JCI Hong Kong.

Level 2 JCI Networkers

Among the local chapters, the following are the Outstanding Networking Chapters who have encouraged the most of their members to be JCI Networkers :-

JCI Bauhinia
(Small-sized Local Chapter)

JCI Dragon
(Medium-sized Local Chapter)

JCI Lion Rock and JCI Harbour
(Large-sized Local Chapter)

Definitely, more and more JCI Networkers will be recognised to introduce more and more young active citizens to JCI and expand our Network of the Young. JCI Networkers, let's take action!

We are JCI Networkers!

2012 JCI Global Partnership Summit

Leading Global Collaboration: The Role of Young Active Citizens

(Source: <http://www.jci.cc/summit/>)

No single entity can answer the world's greatest challenges alone. Government, civil society and business each have a unique and crucial role to play, and only through collaboration will we realise a better world.

What is the role of young people in this new framework of partnership? JCI will lead the initiative by bringing together its key partners – the United Nations, UN Global Compact, UN Foundation and the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) – to drive the change that will better our world for our future and the future of generations to come.

At the JCI Global Partnership Summit on 25-27 July 2012, young people unite with leaders of business, civil society and government to explore the greatest challenges of our time and craft sustainable solutions. These young active citizens return to their communities across the globe armed with new ideas and skills to address these challenges at their roots.

Resolution of the 2012 JCI Global Partnership Summit

As active citizens dedicated to the advancement of the United Nations Millennium Development Goals and inspired by our shared commitment, the delegates of the 2012 JCI Global Partnership Summit reaffirm the commitment to the 2011 Resolution with recommendations for implementation as follows:

1. That every JCI National Organisation will take action to identify a need in its country within the framework of the UN MDGs by the 2012 JCI World Congress in Taipei, Taiwan.
2. That every National Organisation shall commit to at least one project by 2012 JCI World Congress, but may embark on additional projects as new needs are identified before 2015.
3. To proceed to launch the implementation of such a project simultaneously around the world on JCI Active Citizen Day, 11 December 2012.

Recommendations for Implementation

Measures of Success

- JCI World Headquarters will prepare a template with key indicators for projects, including a number of beneficiaries, partnerships, media impact, fundraising, etc.
- National Organisations will report to JCI using the template to notify JCI about the completed project.

Web Platform

- JCI World Headquarters will prepare a Web platform to enable project input and sharing/search facility by Millennium Development Goal.
- Create project recognition using social media.

Communication

- JCI World Headquarters and National Organisations will work together to ensure that all members are informed about the resolution and project tools in a timely manner.

This resolution shall guide the activities of JCI National Organisations until 2015.

Simon Wong Kit Lung Awardee of Ten Outstanding Young Persons 2011 inspires Islanders in JCI Islands' Business Networking Gathering

Over 50 participants joined JCI Island's Business Networking Gathering on 30 August 2012 to learn about “How to build your brand” from our keynote speaker, Mr Simon Wong Kit Lung, executive director of LHGroup (叙福樓集團).

Simon told us the story of how he transforms LHGroup from a traditional Chinese restaurant chain into a modern catering group that owns a variety of restaurant brands. He spent 10 years in engineering before joining the Group. “The beginning is the hardest,” Simon told Islanders, “it took time for me to gain trust from my father and his partners who founded the company.”

Leo Ngan of 2GHK said he very much enjoyed listening to Simon's lively presentation, which is much more engaging than a simple sharing of his experience. We closed off the evening with a terrific buffet dinner where the matchmaking happened, and all participants went home with business cards from new acquaintances they made at our Gathering.

Entering into a new season, JCI Queensway had a very fruitful period.

First of all, 《GO AHEAD 服務計劃》 was successfully launched on 25 August. It is a project to prop up strawberries (18-24 aged youths) with positive working attitude. Our method was to get them involved through board games, which is easier to make youths to get the message. Many target youths came and had a fun afternoon. They understood the concepts while enjoying the board games.

Secondly, JCI Queensway 28th Annual General Meeting was held on 6 October 2012 successfully. Around 100 participants attended and showed support. JCI Queensway 2013 Board of Directors was also successfully elected during the meeting.

Furthermore, Monthly Fellowship Gatherings were also held monthly: "Chocolate Tasting" on 28 July, "Flower Power" on 9 September and "Moon Cake to Lover" on 26 September. All these made our members and friends' life more colorful and meaningful.
